Mrs. Arnold, the sole surviving sister of Stonewall Jackson, resides at Buckhannon, West Va.

Abraham Lincoln's widow has been living in Germany for some years past. Her health is poor. She will sail from Havre early in November, to join her son Robert, in Chicago.

Miss Anna Dickerson does not appreciate the fact that country editors who give abbreviated reports of her play stop at the commas to introduce the words "Loud laughter and applause."

"Sooner or later," says a French writer, "everything is found out." Just so. A married man, for instance, is found out later—about three hours later—than he should be.—N. Y. Express.

Now that the czar has got a wife that is healthy enough to attend all the dry goods openings and keep the bonnet market active, the nihilists see that their effort to worry him would indeed be futile.

The daughter of Gen. Zachary Taylor, a few days ago, received $16,000 at the Treasury Department in Washington. This is the balance of the salary which her father would have received had he lived to complete his Presidential term. Miss Taylor has been in poor circumstances for some years, and the bill authorizing the payment of the money to her passed during the last session of Congress.

Mrs. Anna Stiles had two neighbors at South W. Conn., whom she hated, and sent two poisoned packages of candy by mail. Two families were made dangerously ill, but only one life was lost. Mrs. Stiles was arrested, but before the time of her trial she became insane. That was nine years ago. Now the physicians of the asylum in which she has spent the interval pronounce her fully recovered, and she is to be tried for the crime which, she says, seems to her to have been committed only yesterday.

What we Need.

What we want is stronger men; not men of more delicate habits, or more fastidious tastes. We want men of prophetic insight, and prophetic earnestness, and prophetic daring—men with something of the old prophetic fire. We want men of clear head and large heart, and strong will—men of freest logic and towering imagination; and if to all these things there be added the ready hand and the vigorous arm, so much the better. We want men with the wrestling thwits which throw the world. We want men to be leaders of men, not ministers to the entertainment of women. We want men of strong likes, and strong dislikes, for do not these men the intensity of force with which they will engage in their work—the amount of earnestness and energy they will bring to it?—London Baptist.

Eureka.

St. Louis Times. Eureka Springs, down in Arkansas, will soon become the most famous and best watering place on the continent if it keeps on as it has begun. Not many days ago a stage load of passengers on a pilgrimage to its healing fountain was beset by highwaymen and the passengers were relieved of their spare cash and other portable articles of great value, at the muzzle of the revolver. The passengers on that stage coach will talk about Eureka Springs as long as they live. About the time that these highwaymen were going through that stage coach certain muscular knights of the spade and pickaxe were digging a well at Eureka. If they ever struck water the fact has never been recorded. Before delving very deep into the earth they dug up a baby, and all Eureka at once became indifferent as to whether there was water in the line of that well or not. The baby was perished as hard as adamant; it had been buried at least 1,000,000,000 years before the flood and had completely forgotten how to squall. It is a very wonderful baby and Eureka is more delighted with it than any mother ever was with her firstborn. If anybody wants to see a baby that is going to revolutionize geology and prove that babies existed before Adam, that person had better pack his trunks, arm himself against highwaymen, and set out for Eureka.

"Repudiation."

International Review for November

The word originated in the State of Mississippi, and was ushered into existence by Gov. McNutt, of that State, in 1841, in a message suggesting the plan of "repudiating the sale of certain of the State bonds on account of fraud and illegality."

It may be interesting at this time briefly to refer to the facts which induced Mississippi to take this action upon the subject of its debt. In 1838 the State chartered the Mississippi Union Bank, and in order to provide capital for the institution, it was enacted in the charter that the directors should borrow $15,000,000, and that the Governor might issue seventy-five hundred bonds for $2,000 each, bearing five per cent. interest, redeemable in twelve, eighteen and twenty years, and deliver them to the officers of that institution from time to time in proportion to the amounts subscribed for bank stock, the price of which was to be secured to the satisfaction of the directors. The bonds were made negotiable for the expenses of the president and cashier of the bank; the Governor, by an additional act, was authorized to subscribe in behalf of the State for $5,000,000 of the stock of the bank, and he did so. In June, 1838, he delivered to the bank two thousand five hundred bonds, amounting to $5,000,000, payable in twelve and twenty years, on the fifth day of February, 1838, and bearing five per cent. interest from their date. The charter required the bank to appoint three commissioners for the sale of the bonds, and imposed this restriction on their authority—that the bonds should not be sold under their par value.

On the 18th of August, 1838, the commissioners sold all the bonds to Mr. Biddle for the sum of $5,000,000, payable in five equal installments of $1,000,000 each, on the first day of February, 1838, and the first days of January, March, May and July, 1839, without interest. This money was punctually paid to the bank, which went into operation, and before January, 1841, all its capital. * * * In response to the message of the Governor in January, 1841, the Legislature of the State of Mississippi passed a resolution to the effect that the State was bound to the holders of the bonds of the State sold on account of the bank, for the amount of the principal and interest; and, furthermore, that the State of Mississippi would pay her bonds and preserve her faith inviolate. The Legislature, at this time, repudiated the great vigor the insinuation that the State would repudiate her bonds and violate her pledged faith; and, moreover, declared that any accusation of this kind was a "calumny upon the justice, honor and dignity of the State." Having thus acknowledged the validity of the debt, and pledged her word for its redemption, all further discussion as to its legality ended. These bonds were never formally repudiated, but fell into default; and, although successive Governors urged payment, no provision was made, and in 1852 the appropriation therefor was defeated by 4,400 majority on a popular vote. There proposition is a now before the Legislature of Mississippi for a compromise with the holders of the old repudiated bonds of that State. This proposition from the English bondholders received after adjournment of the Legislature, and consequently a year old, is for a waiver of all consideration of interest since 1840, and a reissue of the $7,000,000 to begin at 3 per cent., and increase annually at the rate of one-half per cent., giving the State the option of receiving the bond for any unoccupied State lands, at three hundred and twenty acres for a thousand-dollar bond, that immigration of workers may be induced. The proposition, says the published report, was received politely, and action was taken looking to a joint committee for its consideration; but if correctly reported, its terms are obviously impracticable, being penal in severity; hence it will not likely be accepted.

Born Before His Time.

Mr. H. Q. Watts, in his speech at Woodlawn some days ago, was interrupted by a bidder, who said: "Mr. Watts, I don't think it is right that I shall pay any of that debt, because it was made before I was born." My withering reply promptly came: "My friend, you were born before your time and if the bondholders had known you were going to be born at all, they never would have lent their money to the State."

Communication of Mr. Etter.

ETTER'S STORE, Oct. 30, '80.

Editor Standard:—I wish to make a short explanation through your paper. On the 13th of October, at this place, L. B. Waters asked Geo. M. Savage a question which has been understood differently by those who heard the question. Capt. Hash, W. G. Etter, and others, understood the question thus: "Were you in the Legislature what would you do with the railroad debt?" But I, together with others, understood the question to be proposed thus: "What would you do with the railroad debt were it left to the Legislature to settle?" Savage replied, "I would wipe it out." Hence, if Capt. Hash was correct as to how Mr. Waters proposed the question, Mr. Savage's reply broke the "submission plank" out of his platform. Mr. Savage denied his reply, but it being proved that he made such a reply, and he finding out that I understood the question differently, asked me if I would sign a certificate stating that I so understood the question. I did so because I understood it so, not intending to leave the impression that others had wantonly lied, as I afterward found was Mr. Savage's object in procuring my signature. No, Mr. Savage, if you have allowed yourself to be entrapped, you cannot prove that others have lied in order to exculpate yourself. I never made any positive or unqualified assertion as to how Mr. Waters proposed his question, but told you in the presence of Mr. Meadows, that I gave that certificate simply as my opinion, not thinking that you would so far forget the dignity becoming a gentleman as to misconstrue and misapply simply an opinion of mine in order to prove my brother and others liars—men whose honor and dignity would not allow them to do you an injustice.

Mr. Savage first denied saying he would "wipe the debt out," but we all agree that he did say it. And as I never made an unqualified assertion as to how the question was stated, but simply gave my opinion, I am willing for Mr. Waters to restate his question as first proposed, and I will stand re-proved for promulgating my opinion if it was incorrect, and you, Mr. Savage, in regard to those flat denials, must clear your skirts as best you can.

EUGENE B. ETTER.

Exaggeration.

Some habits are so unconsciously practiced that a movement to mend them is the only way to detect them. The beam in one's own eye is less noticed than the mote in another person's eye.

A family while at the breakfast table one morning pledged to observe the strictest veracity for that day. A member of the family tells the "consequences."

As a first fruit of the resolve, we asked the one who suggested it: "What made you so late at breakfast this morning?"

She hesitated, began with, "Because I couldn't," and then, true to her compact, said: "The truth is, I was lazy, and didn't hurry, or I might have been down long ago."

Presently one of them remarked that she had been very cold, adding: "I never was so cold in my life."

An inquiring look caused the last speaker to modify this statement instantly with: "Oh, I don't think it was so cold, after all."

A third remark to the effect that "Miss So-and-So was the homeliest girl in the city,"
